About the Baccalaureate Service

The Baccalaureate Service for the senior class at Tufts began in 1865. Baccalaureate is an ancient custom wherein those being admitted to the degree of bachelor are honored with laurels of oration to inspire them as they cross this threshold into their lives beyond.

This service is the last time for the senior class to be alone together as a class. One senior is selected to offer the Wendell Phillips Address, and the president offers his parting remarks to the class.

The context is a multifaith celebration honoring the heritage of spirituality and values at Tufts through a diversity of religions, philosophies, and cultures in the forms of music, readings, and blessings. All are welcome.
